As many of the Chinese come to our schools simply to learn the language, not the destrices of Christianity, I am free to say that the two teachings should be divided. Night schools should be established, and there they should learn the language. After this they should come to receive religious instruction."

Dr. Diven, of the Harson Place Bantist.

Dr. Dixon, of the Hanson Place Baptist Church, thought that the matter of teaching should be placed in the hands of elderly persons.

"Young girls should not be placed in a position to be mortified suddenly by a profession of love from a pupit for whem they have felt merely a Christian interest," said Dr. Dixon. "I should not care to see it in my church."
